

Source: Legal > Cases > U.S. > Federal & State Cases, Combined
Terms: location of deposition and travel (Edit Search)

Select for FOCUS™ or Delivery

2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13859, *

DARRYL L. DAGEN, Plaintiff, -against- CFC GROUP HOLDINGS LTD., ET AL., Defendants.

00 Civ. 5682 (CBM)

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13859

August 7, 2003, Decided
August 11, 2003, Filed

SUBSEQUENT HISTORY: Request granted Dagen v. CFC Group Holdings Ltd., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20029 (S.D.N.Y., Nov. 7, 2003)

PRIOR HISTORY: Dagen v. CFC Group Holdings, Ltd., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1225 (S.D.N.Y., Jan. 24, 2003)

DISPOSITION: [*1] Defendants' motion for a protective order granted. Plaintiff's application to compel denied.

CASE SUMMARY

PROCEDURAL POSTURE: Plaintiff former employee sued defendants, a group of affiliated corporate entities and one of the corporate officers, for breach of an employment contract. Defendants counterclaimed, alleging various claims. In the course of discovery, defendants moved for a protective order directing that the officer be deposed, if at all, in Hong Kong. The employee moved to compel the deposition in New York.

OVERVIEW: The court noted that it appeared that the employee wished to depose the officer in New York for significant but seemingly unremarkable reasons, including cost and convenience. The employee had made no argument that he was limited in his ability to choose the forum for litigation, so the force of the presumption of deference to the officer that the officer's deposition should be held in the district of his residence was not diminished. The employee presented little evidence in support of his assertion that defendants were better able to bear the significant costs of travel and lodging related to the deposition. By contrast, defendants claimed that their firm was not a large corporate entity, but actually a small securities trading business made up of only one shareholder. The officer was the company's principal trader, so his absence from the workplace for a number of days, and perhaps an entire work-week, would have an adverse impact on defendants. Furthermore, while it was true that the court would likely be unable to make rulings contemporaneous with the deposition, the employee did not explain why it was likely that the court would need to intervene.

OUTCOME: Defendants' motion for a protective order directing that the corporate officer be deposed in Hong Kong was granted. The employee's application to compel the deposition of the corporate officer in New York was denied.

CORE TERMS: deposition, travel, convenience, peculiar, protective order, deference, motion to dismiss, designating, reporter, deposed, different location, place of business, inconvenience, militate, slight, motion to compel, positioned, directing, sending, absorb, trader, notice, resides, hired, duties

LexisNexis(R) Headnotes • Hide Headnotes

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions
Evidence > Procedural Considerations > Inferences & Presumptions
Evidence > Procedural Considerations > Burdens of Proof

HN1 There is a general presumption that the deposition of a defendant should be held in the district of his residence. Generally, if a plaintiff notices a defendant's deposition with a location other than defendant's residence or place of business and defendant objects, the plaintiff has the affirmative burden of demonstrating "peculiar" circumstances which compel the court to order the depositions to be held in an alternate location. The rationale for the presumption of deference to the defendant is that the plaintiff is free to choose the forum within which to litigate. Since defendants are not before the court by choice, it is the plaintiff who should bear any reasonable burdens of inconvenience that the action presents. More Like This Headnote

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions
Evidence > Procedural Considerations > Inferences & Presumptions

Evidence > Procedural Considerations > Inferences & Presumptions  HN2  The force of the presumption of deference to the defendant that the deposition of a defendant should be held in the district of his residence is diminished if the plaintiff was constrained in choosing the forum for litigation. More Like This Headnote

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions
Evidence > Procedural Considerations > Inferences & Presumptions

HN3  The familiar presumption in favor of locating a deposition at the deponent's residence or place of business can be overcome by a showing that factors of cost, convenience, and litigation efficiency militate in favor of a different location. More Like This Headnote

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions

H14 Cost considerations related to the location of depositions can be viewed through at least two lenses: the relative ability of the parties to bear the expense of depositions in a given location, and the effect that the choice of location will have upon the total costs of litigation. More Like This Headnote

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions

HNS In the context of determining the location of a deposition, factors relevant to convenience include convenience of counsel, the defendant's residence, and the extent of disruption of the defendant's affairs during travel to and from the depositions. In any event, the convenience of counsel is less compelling than any hardship to the witnesses. More Like This Headnote

COUNSEL: For Plaintiff: Chaim B. Book, Moskowitz & Book, LLP, New York, NY.

For Defendants: Steven M. Hecht, Lowenstein Sandler PC, Roseland, NJ.

the deposition of Merkenich. Defendants, who assert that the proper location for the deposition is Hong Kong, suggested that the court could easily dispose of this issue with reference to the Hague Evidence Convention. The court granted defendants' request for leave to move for a protective order, agreeing to consider briefs on the "applicability of the Hague Convention" to the issue of where Merkenich ought properly to be deposed. Thus, in accordance with the schedule set out by the court, defendants have made an application styled as a motion for a protective order "directing that certain Hong Kong Defendants be deposed, if at all, in their place of residence and employment in Hong Kong" Def. Br. at 1. Plaintiff, opposing this motion, has submitted a motion to compel the deposition [*5] of Merkenich in New York.

II. Location of Deposition of Boris Merkenich

HN1 There is a general presumption that the deposition of a defendant should "be held in the district of his residence." In re Livent, Inc. Secs. Litig., 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19990, 2002 WL 31366416, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 21, 2002) (citing Six West Retail Acquisition, Inc. v. Sony Theatre Management Corp., 203 F.R.D. 98, 107 (S.D.N.Y. 2001); Devlin v. Transp. Communs. Int'l Union, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 264, 2000 WL 28173, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 14, 2000); Mill-Run Tours, Inc. v. Khashoggi, 124 F.R.D. 547, 550 (S.D.N.Y. 1989)). Generally, if a plaintiff notices a defendant's deposition with a location other than defendant's residence, or place of business and defendant objects, the plaintiff has the affirmative burden of demonstrating "peculiar" circumstances which compel the court to order the depositions to be held in an alternate location. See Six West Retail Acquisition, Inc. 203 F.R.D. at 107 (citing Federal Deposit Insurance Co. v. La Antillana, S.A., 1990 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13246, 1990 WL 155727, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Oct. 5, 1990)) (plaintiff may overcome presumptive deference to defendant [*6] "by showing 'peculiar' circumstances favoring depositions at a different location"). The rationale for the presumption of deference to the defendant is that the plaintiff is free to choose the forum within which to litigate. Since "defendants are not before the court by choice, it is the plaintiff who should bear any reasonable burdens of inconvenience that the action presents." Federal Deposit Insurance, 1990 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13246, 1990 WL 155727, at *1.

Plaintiff has failed to rise to the challenge of presenting evidence of "peculiar" circumstances in support of its noticing defendant Merkenich in New York. It appears that plaintiff wishes to depose Merkenich in New York for significant but seemingly unremarkable reasons, including cost and convenience. While cognizant of the fact that travel between Hong Kong and New York is both costly and time-consuming, the court finds that plaintiff has failed to describe any peculiar reasons why the depositions should not take place at the deponent's location of residence.

The court notes that HN2 the force of the presumption of deference to the defendant is diminished if the plaintiff was constrained in choosing the forum for litigation. See Devlin, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 264, 2000 WL 28173, [*7] at *3; Doe v. Karadzic, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 1073, 1997 WL 45515, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. 1997); Mill-Run Tours, Inc., 124 F.R.D. at 550. In the instant case, plaintiff has made no argument that he was limited in his ability to choose the forum for litigation. Indeed, defendants appear to have been amenable to suit in Hong Kong. While the circumstances of the case suggest that travel to New York in the event of a legal action such as this cannot be said to have been unforeseeable, the court is initially prepared to accord a slight, albeit defeasible, presumption in favor of the depositions occurring in Hong Kong.

It is now well-settled, though, that HN3 the familiar presumption in favor of locating a deposition at the deponent's residence or place of business "can be overcome by a showing that factors of cost, convenience, and litigation efficiency militate in favor of" a different location. Livent, Inc. Secs., 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19990, 2002 WL 31366416 at *1; Six

West Retail Acquisition, Inc., 203 F.R.D. at 107; Devlin, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 264, 2000 WL 28173, at *3; Mill-Run Tours, Inc., 124 F.R.D. at 550. Plaintiff fails to convince the court with respect to these issues. [*8]

A. Cost

HNS Cost considerations related to the location of depositions can be viewed through at least two lenses: the relative ability of the parties to bear the expense of depositions in a given location, and the effect that the choice of location will have upon the total costs of litigation. In the instant case, both plaintiff and defendants insist that cost considerations militate in favor of designating their preferred locations for the deposition. Plaintiff, for example, is currently unemployed; accordingly, he notes that it would be financially prohibitive for him to have to pay expenses related to sending at least one attorney and a court reporter to Hong Kong for a deposition. Arguing pursuant to the "relative ability to pay" strand of the cost analysis, plaintiff asserts that defendants are much better positioned to absorb the cost of Merkenich's round trip travel to New York.

Plaintiff presents little evidence in support of his assertion that defendants are better able to bear the significant costs of travel and lodging related to the deposition. By contrast, defendants claim that their firm is not a large corporate entity, but actually a "small securities trading [*9] business" made up of only one shareholder. Defendants claim that CFC Securities Asia is on precarious financial footing. Whereas Merkenich is the company's principal trader, defendants argue that his absence from the office during a deposition in New York will result in significant financial losses which the company is poorly positioned to absorb at this time. In addition, defendants assert that only one person -- Dagen's counsel -- would have to travel to Hong Kong to conduct the deposition. Defendants posit that a court reporter in Hong Kong can transcribe the deposition, thus obviating the need for a reporter to travel from the United States. n1 n1 Defendants also note that under the Hague Evidence Convention, plaintiff's lawyer may use a tape recorder to record the deposition and have a certified transcript prepared in the United States.

----- Footnotes -----

----- End Footnotes -----

It is unclear whether overall costs would be greater if the depositions were held in New York or Hong Kong. Plaintiff's counsel work in New York; defendants' counsel are [*10] based nearby in New Jersey. If the deposition were held in New York, only one person -- Merkenich -- would have to make the trip between Hong Kong and New York. Plaintiff acknowledges that only one of plaintiff's attorneys would have to travel to Hong Kong. Pl.'s Br. at 4. Defendants have suggested that they would use local counsel if the deposition were located in Hong Kong. Def. Reply at 2. This factor does not appear to definitively favor either party; the presumption in favor of defendants, while slight, remains in force.

B. Convenience

HNS Factors relevant to convenience include convenience of counsel, defendants' residence, and the extent of disruption of defendants' affairs during travel to and from the depositions. See Federal Deposit Insurance Co., 1990 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13246, 1990 WL 155727, at *3 (citing Mill-Run Tours, Inc., 124 F.R.D. at 550). Plaintiff is represented by a small firm comprised of four attorneys which does business almost exclusively in New York. If the depositions are scheduled to take place in Hong Kong, the absence of one of the attorney's from the office could place a significant strain on the other attorneys. Defendants' counsel are [*11] employed by a large New Jersey law firm. Presumably, sending an attorney to Hong Kong would be less difficult to schedule and would inconvenience the larger firm to a lesser degree. Indeed, if depositions occur in Hong Kong, only plaintiff's attorney will be discommoded. In any event, "the convenience of counsel is less compelling than any hardship to the witnesses." Devlin, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 264, 2000 WL 28173 at *4.

In this case, the relevant witness, Boris Merkenich, resides in Hong Kong. He occupies a senior management position in the firm's Hong Kong office. He is the principal securities trader for CFC Securities operating in Hong Kong. His absence from the workplace for a number of days, and perhaps an entire work-week, would have an adverse impact on Merkenich and the company. Merkenich Decl. P 5.

Plaintiff fails to make his case with respect to considerations of litigation efficiency. While it is true that the court would likely be unable to make rulings contemporaneous with the deposition, plaintiff does not explain why it is likely that the court will need to intervene during a deposition in this matter.

For all of these reasons, and without reference to the Hague Evidence [*12] Convention, the court rules that defendants' application for a protective order designating Hong Kong as the site for Merkenich's deposition is GRANTED. Plaintiff's motion to compel deposition in New York is DENIED.

SO ORDERED.

Dated: August 7, 2003

Constance Baker Motley

United States District Judge

Source: Legal > Cases - U.S. > Federal & State Cases, Combined [i]

Terms: location of deposition and travel (Edit Search)

View: Full

Date/Time: Wednesday, December 29, 2004 - 4:30 PM EST

* Signal Legend:

● - Warning: Negative treatment is indicated

▲ - Caution: Possible negative treatment

◆ - Positive treatment is indicated

Ⓐ - Citing Refs. With Analysis Available

Ⓢ - Citation information available

* Click on any Shepard's signal to Shepardize® that case.

About LexisNexis | Terms and Conditions

Copyright © 2004 LexisNexis, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc. All rights reserved.

Source: Legal > /.../ > 6th Circuit - US Court of Appeals, District & Bankruptcy Cases, Combined
 Terms: deposition w/s travel expenses and defendant (Edit Search)

☒ Select for FOCUS™ or Delivery

116 F.R.D. 70, *; 1987 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13927, **

Michael FARQUHAR, Plaintiff, v. Francis Duffield SHELLEN and Dyer Grossman, Defendant

Civil Action No. 86-CV-30108-PH

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN, SOUTHERN DIVISION

116 F.R.D. 70; 1987 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13927

May 14, 1987, Decided
 May 14, 1987, Filed

CASE SUMMARY

PROCEDURAL POSTURE: Defendant, resident of the Netherlands, filed a motion for a protective order, pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c), to prevent plaintiff United States resident from taking defendant's deposition in Michigan and requested that plaintiff be required to take defendant's deposition in the Netherlands.

OVERVIEW: Defendant alleged that plaintiff could have made use of the Hague Convention on the Taking of Evidence Abroad in Civil or Commercial Matters, 23 U.S.T. 2555, TIAS No. 7444, to have secured defendant's deposition in the Netherlands, that his deposition had been taken in the Netherlands in other litigation, and that he offered to voluntarily give the deposition in the Netherlands and advance plaintiff's costs. Plaintiff argued that a deposition in the Netherlands would involve tremendous costs and inconvenience to a relatively impecunious plaintiff. The court held that in the absence of special circumstances, the party seeking discovery had to travel to where the witnesses were normally located, that depositions were presumed to be at the defendant's residence or place of business, and that there was no compelling reason to depart from the general rule requiring a defendant be deposed where he resides. The court held that plaintiff voluntarily brought the suit in the United States, that defendant was not before the court by choice, and that there was no barrier to plaintiff's use of the Hague Convention for taking of the deposition in the Netherlands.

OUTCOME: The court granted defendant's motion for a protective order, ordered that defendant's deposition be taken in the Netherlands, and ordered that defendant advance to plaintiff the cost for the deposition to be deemed taxed costs of litigation in favor of the prevailing party.

CORE TERMS: deposition, protective order, deposed, travel, inconvenience, prevailing party, discovery, normally, lawsuit, notice, taxed, instant motion, oral argument, evidentiary, arrest, wealth, resides

LexisNexis(R) Headnotes ♦ Hide Headnotes

Civil Procedure > Disclosure & Discovery > Protective Orders

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions

Civil Procedure > Trials > Subpoenas

HN1 A notice for the taking of a deposition sent to all parties is all that is necessary to require attendance of parties at their depositions. A subpoena is not necessary if the person to be examined is a party. Thus, Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(d)(2) is not applicable to depositions of parties. Instead, an examining party may set the place for the deposition of another party wherever he wishes subject to the power of the court to grant a protective order under Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(c)(2) designating a different place. More Like This Headnote

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions

HN2 It is within the discretion of the court to designate the location for a taking of depositions, and each application must be considered on its own facts and equities. While a court may order a defendant to appear at any convenient place, it will be presumed that the defendant will be examined at his residence or place of business or employment. More Like This Headnote

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions

HN3 In federal litigation, in the absence of special circumstances, a party seeking discovery must go where the desired witnesses are normally located. More Like This Headnote

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions

HN4 A claim of financial hardship, taken alone, does not demonstrate the exceptional or compelling circumstances necessary to alter the rule that in federal litigation, in the absence of special circumstances, a party seeking discovery must go where the desired witnesses are normally located. While the location of the parties themselves is a primary factor, locations of their attorneys is also a relevant consideration. More Like This Headnote

Civil Procedure > Discovery Methods > Oral Depositions

HN5 A judicial officer may order a deposition to be taken, if not at the forum, at an appropriate distant place under terms whereby the reasonable expense thereof may ultimately be reflected in the taxable costs. More Like This Headnote

JUDGES: Charles E. Binder, United States Magistrate.

OPINIONBY: [1] BINDER

OPINION: [*71] ORDER ON DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER

At a session of the said Court held in the Federal Building, Bay City, Michigan, on the 14th day of May, 1987

PRESENT: HONORABLE CHARLES E. BINDER, United States Magistrate

Pending, pursuant to an Order of Reference from United States District Judge James Harvey is a motion by defendant Shelden for a protective order, pursuant to F.R.C.P. 26(c). This motion has its genesis in plaintiff's notice of taking Shelden's deposition, setting the deposition for the City of Farmington Hills, Michigan. Shelden is a citizen and resident of the Netherlands, and requests in this motion that a protective order issue requiring plaintiff to take defendant Shelden's deposition in Amsterdam.

Jurisdiction is premised upon diversity of citizenship. This case was removed from St. Clair County, Michigan, Circuit Court, August 20, 1986. Plaintiff seeks damages from both the named defendants, n1 based upon allegations that the defendants sexually abused the plaintiff during the years 1974 and 1976 in St. Clair County and on an island in Lake Michigan, on which was located "Brother Paul's Children's Mission," which defendant Shelden is said [2] to have directed.

----- Footnotes -----

n1 The instant motion involves only defendant Shelden. Plaintiff's repeated attempts to serve defendant Grossman have been unsuccessful and at the hearing on this motion, counsel for plaintiff represented that defendant Grossman would shortly be voluntarily dismissed.

----- End Footnotes -----

Defendant Shelden's personal history is both rather unique and, more importantly, of relevance to the instant motion. n2 Shelden was born in 1928 and inherited considerable wealth from his father and grandfathers. By the middle 1970's, he owned approximately two million dollars in marketable securities, along with a condominium and land in northern lower Michigan. In July, 1976, Shelden received a telephone call from defendant Grossman. Defendant Grossman suggested that Shelden should leave the country. Shelden did so, and in the process, executed an irrevocable trust covering many of his assets. n3 Shelden later learned that the State of Michigan had issued criminal warrants for his arrest. Counsel have represented that during 1977 or 1978, criminal sexual conduct charges were filed against Shelden in St. Clair County, Michigan. It is believed that similar charges were filed against Shelden in [3] Grand Traverse County. In addition, counsel represent that a federal fugitive warrant was obtained.

----- Footnotes -----

n2 This is not the first litigation in which Shelden has been involved. See National Bank of Detroit v. Shelden, 730 F.2d 421 (6th Cir. 1984). Much of what follows has been gleaned from the facts of that case.

n3 That trust instrument and its aftermath ultimately gave rise to the National Bank of Detroit, supra case.

----- End Footnotes -----

In support of his motion, Shelden maintains that without significant inconvenience, plaintiff can make use of the Hague Convention n4 and secure Shelden's testimony where he resides. Defendant Shelden represents that he has previously indicated in writing to the plaintiff that he will voluntarily make himself available for deposition in the Netherlands; and, at oral argument, defendant further represented through counsel that he would post a bond or otherwise secure plaintiff's costs for this deposition. Shelden points out that his deposition was taken in the Netherlands in other litigation (See Footnote 2), pursuant to the Hague Convention, and that both this Court and the Sixth Circuit gave that deposition testimony evidentiary weight. Shelden [72] asserts [4] that it would therefore be an abuse of discretion for this Magistrate to order a citizen of the Netherlands to travel to a foreign country for his deposition.

----- Footnotes -----

n4 See Hague Convention on the Taking of Evidence Abroad in Civil or Commercial Matters, opened for signature March 18, 1970, 23 U.S.T. 2555, TIAS No. 7444, reprinted at 28 U.S.C. Sec. 1781 (West Supp. 1986).

----- End Footnotes -----

Plaintiff strenuously maintains that Shelden's deposition can only be properly taken in the United States. Plaintiff argues that the balancing of the equities favors deposition in the United States. According to plaintiff, the grant of defendant's motion would necessitate not only the imposition of tremendous costs upon a relatively impecunious plaintiff, but would impose severe inconvenience upon both the plaintiff himself and his counsel. Counsel represents that plaintiff himself, along with co-counsel and a court reporter, must all be brought to Amsterdam if Shelden's deposition is to be properly taken. Plaintiff points to defendant Shelden's considerable wealth and asserts that the travel of a single individual, Shelden himself, to a deposition in Michigan would involve considerably less cost, delay and inconvenience. [5] Plaintiff also notes that the deposition of Shelden, referred to by defense counsel, was a de bene esse deposition by Shelden's own counsel, taken for the benefit of defendant himself.

HN1 A notice for the taking of a deposition sent to all parties is all that is necessary to require attendance of parties at their depositions. A subpoena is not necessary if the person to be examined is a party. Wright and Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil, Sec. 2107. Thus, Rule 45(d)(2) is not applicable to depositions of parties. See 4A Moore's Federal Practice Sec. 30.55[1], at 30-67; 5A Moore's Federal Practice Sec. 45.08, at 45-81 & Para. 45.07[1], at 45-60. Instead, an "examining party may set the place for the deposition of another party wherever he wishes subject to the power of the court to grant a protective order under Rule 26(c)(2) designating a different place." Wright and Miller, supra at Sec. 2112.

HN2 It is within the discretion of the court to designate the location for a taking of depositions, and each application must be considered on its own facts and equities. Terry v. Modern Woodmen of America, 57 F.R.D. 141 (D. Mo. 1972). While a court may order a defendant to appear at any convenient place, case law [6] indicates that "it will be presumed that the defendant will be examined at his residence or place of business or employment." 4 Moore's Federal Practice Sec. 26.70[1-3], at 26-514 and cases cited therein.

From these principles has evolved the rule that HN3 in federal litigation, in the absence of special circumstances, a party seeking discovery must go where the desired witnesses are normally located. Salter v. Upjohn Co., 593 F.2d 649, 671 (5th Cir. 1979), Dunn v. Standard Fire Insurance Co., 92 F.R.D. 31 (E.D. Tenn. 1981), General Leasing Co. v. Lawrence Photo-Graphic Supply, 84 F.R.D. 130 (W.D. Mo. 1979). Underlying this rule appears to be the concept that it is the plaintiffs who bring the lawsuit and who exercise the first choice as to the forum. The defendants, on the other hand, are not before the court by choice. Thus, courts have held that plaintiffs normally cannot complain if they are required to take discovery at great distances from the forum. See Work v. Bier, 107 F.R.D. 789, 792 (D.C. 1985). Indeed, some cases have held that HN4 a claim of financial hardship, taken alone, does not demonstrate the exceptional or compelling circumstances necessary to alter this [7] rule. General Leasing Co., supra 84 F.R.D. at 131. While the location of the parties themselves is a primary factor, locations of their attorneys is also a relevant consideration. Haymes v. Columbia Pictures Corp., 16 F.R.D. 118, 123 (S.D. N.Y. 1954).

In Hyam v. American Export Lines, 213 F.2d 221, 223 (2d Cir. 1954), Justice (then Judge) Harlan, held that ^{HNS} a judicial officer "may order the deposition to be taken, if not at the forum, at an appropriate distant place under terms whereby the reasonable expense thereof may ultimately be reflected in the taxable costs." In Huynh v. Werke, 90 F.R.D. 447 (D.C. Ohio 1981), the [*73] court ordered that plaintiff travel to West Germany to depose corporate employees of defendant, but required the defendant to advance plaintiff one-half the total reasonable travel expenses required for the depositions, deeming this amount to be taxed as costs of litigation in favor of the prevailing party. See also Yannitelli v. Navieras de Puerto Rico, 103 F.R.D. 413, 417 (S.D. N.Y. 1984).

After considering the arguments advanced by both parties, and in light of defendant Shelden's willingness to be deposed in the Netherlands, his offer to advance plaintiff [8] the cost of depositing him in the Netherlands, and his demonstrated ability to be deposed there, I fail to discern a compelling reason why I should depart from the general rule requiring a defendant to be deposed where he resides. n5 Plaintiff, through conscious choice, brought suit in this country. Although defendant removed the case to this court, it cannot properly be said that he is now before this court by choice, since plaintiff filed this lawsuit to begin with. Making use of the Hague Convention, defendant Shelden has been successfully deposed during the course of previous litigation. No evidentiary barriers to the use of that testimony were raised either by this court or by the Sixth Circuit. In this case, Shelden offered plaintiff the same terms, and more. Plaintiff refused. Under the circumstances, I fail to see why the same procedures cannot again be utilized. Of course, various sanctions under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure remain available to plaintiff in the event Shelden refuses to attend his deposition, or otherwise improperly obstructs its progress.

----- Footnotes -----

n5 At oral argument, counsel for Shelden points out that the defendant's return to the United States for his deposition could subject him to immediate arrest and possible incarceration on the outstanding criminal warrants against him. Although this contention may indeed be correct, I note that the United States and the Netherlands have entered into a treaty providing for the extradition of persons between these two countries. See Extradition Treaty Between the United States of America and the Kingdom of the Netherlands, TIAS 10733. The parties are in dispute as to whether proceedings to extradite Shelden have been undertaken during the approximately ten years he has been outside the United States. Whether or not such proceedings have been initiated, I do not deem it appropriate for this court to undertake, through a discovery order in a civil case, actions which federal and state prosecutors were either unwilling or unable to accomplish themselves.

----- End Footnotes -----

[9] Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, IT IS ORDERED that DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER IS GRANTED. Plaintiff shall conduct defendant Shelden's deposition in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, at a location, date and time to be agreed upon by the parties, but no later than 120 days from the date hereof.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that defendant Shelden shall advance to plaintiff the cost for the deposition, which shall be deemed to be taxed costs of litigation in favor of the prevailing party.

Review of this Order is governed by Rule C-4(a) and Rule 10(c) of the Local Rules of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Source: Legal > / ... / > 6th Circuit - US Court of Appeals, District & Bankruptcy Cases, Combined

Terms: deposition w/s travel expenses and defendant (Edit Search)

View: Full

Date/Time: Friday, December 31, 2004 - 2:05 PM EST

* Signal Legend:

 - Warning: Negative treatment is indicated

 - Caution: Possible negative treatment

 - Positive treatment is indicated

 - Citing Refs. With Analysis Available

 - Citation information available

* Click on any Shepard's signal to Shepardize® that case.

About LexisNexis | Terms and Conditions

Copyright © 2004 LexisNexis, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc. All rights reserved.